

4.2.1: Library is automated with digital facilities using Integrated Library Management System (ILMS), adequate subscriptions to e-resources and journals are made. The library is optimally used by the faculty and students

Library Infrastructure:

The college library at Government Arts College Bhesan (GACB) serves as a vital hub for academic enrichment and research, encompassing an area of 1,477 square feet. Housing a diverse collection of 3,531 books, 11 journals, and 3 newspapers, the library offers ample seating, a designated area for new acquisitions display, and a computer terminal for catalogue searches.

E-Resources:

Access to e-resources from platforms like the National Digital Library of India enhances research capabilities, while a browsing section with four computers facilitates internet access and study.

Institutional Repository:

The college library has developed an institutional repository using 'DSpace' software, an open-source platform. This repository maintains e-books, old papers for student reference, study materials developed by college faculty, and other resources for user development.

Automation:

Library operations are streamlined through KOHA ILMS, automating tasks such as cataloguing, book issue and return, and facilitating OPAC services for users. This system supports student and staff memberships, serial management, and reporting, empowering readers to track their reading history and discover new resources.

GACB Bimonthly Newsletter:

The GACB Bimonthly Newsletter chronicles academic and cultural activities, celebrating faculty achievements and fostering a culture of achievement among students. Additionally, the library's institutional repository on 'DSpace' hosts e-books, study materials, and faculty publications for academic enhancement.

Collection of Books and Journals:

With a focus on user convenience, the library maintains segregated sections for competitive exam preparation, multilingual magazines, and displays notices on current events and college activities. Overall, the GACB library stands as a cornerstone of academic excellence, supporting the educational journey of students and faculty alike with its comprehensive resources and modern facilities.
